- 169 DAVID LIVINGSTONE, 1857 (Feb. 17) letter (no cover) written and signed by David Livingstone (1813-73) datelined "57 Sloane Street" (London) where he had taken up residence a month before. With contemporary photograph of Livingstone on thick card annotated on reverse. Photo also on inside front cover.

Livingstone first travelled to South Africa in 1841 to work as a missionary, and between 1854 and 1856 made his first major expedition into the interior of Africa during which he discovered Victoria Falls and crossed the continent from coast to coast, a feat that no European had managed before. During that expedition, in May 1854, Livingstone fell ill with dysentery and had to temporarily return to Loanda, where he was treated by the doctor of British naval ship, the Philomel, then in the area to discourage the slave trade. This letter is directed to one of the officers from that ship, "I shall always remember you of the Philomel with kindly feelings". In the letter he mentions other acquaintances from the same ship – Lieutenant Bedingfeld, to whom he entrusted a diary, maps and several letters to take to England and Lieutenant A.H.H. Hoskins, whom Livingstone would later mention in his books on successive occasions as among those who assured him that the lower course of the Zambezi was navigable. As a result of this first expedition, Livingstone conceived the idea of opening a route into the interior of Africa along the Zambezi River. At the end of 1856 he returned to England in search of help for his project, and at Christmas that year the publisher John Murray proposed to Livingstone that he write a book about his experiences, making a generous offer that Livingstone could use to finance his expedition. This letter was written shortly after the offer was made and, he states "Am at close work over a book and when that is over will leave for East Africa. 110 men like those you saw (are) awaiting return in April". During the next six months Livingstone would focus his efforts on the manuscript, which was published in November under the title Missionary travels and researches in South Africa. Whilst immersed in that project, it also seems that Livingstone was further distracted, "I lost my father in February last and can sympathise with you. This is written at a moment of relaxation. I wish I were away again." A year after writing this letter, in March 1858, he would begin his great expedition along the Zambezi.

An important direct insight into the state of mind of one of Britain's most celebrated explorers at this critical time in his life.

It was quickly replaced by the conventional thicker chalk surfaced paper. They are notably rare in blocks, and are immediately distinguishable from the later chalk surfaced paper in that they appear white not cream on the reverse, and because of the thin paper the watermark is readily apparent. The reaction under UV lamp also differs.* Hendon certificate (2024). Ex Wiseman. Photo. £200-£250

Foreign Residence, Travel and Occupation.—This assurance is free from all restrictions as to foreign residence, travel and occupation.
Participation in Profits.—The profits to be divided will be ascertained by such methods as the Directors think fit and will be distributed at such times and in such manner as they may determine.
Days of Grace.—Thirty days of grace are allowed for the payment of annual, half-yearly and quarterly renewal premiums and ten days for quarterly renewal premiums. During the days of grace the assurance remains in force, the interest premium, however, accumulating due to the Society.
Surrender Value.—This assurance (including any reversionary bonus) acquires a surrender value as soon as two years' premiums have been received. Questions will be made on application.
Loans.—Loans on the security of this assurance, within the surrender value, will be granted by the Society to the absolute use and interest of any assignee apart from interest.
Policy Assignment.—This assurance may be converted into a paid-up assurance for a reduced sum assured provided that the assurance has acquired a surrender value and that no premium is overdue. An assignee entitled to participate in profits will participate at distributions of profits made subsequent to the conversion; the reversionary bonus (if any) existing at the date of conversion will be payable with the reduced sum assured. Questions will be made on application.

Protection against Forfeiture.—If any premium is not received before the expiration of the days of grace, this assurance will remain in force for one year from the day on which the first overdue premium became due, provided two years' premiums have been received. During the year the arrears of premium, with interest at the rate of five per cent, per annum (subject to a minimum charge of one shilling), will be accepted without evidence of health, or will be deducted from any moneys payable by the Society. If at the expiration of the year before-mentioned the first overdue premium and interest have not been received, the balance of the surrender value of the assurance, after deduction of the arrears of premium and interest, will be applied to convert this assurance into a paid-up reduced assurance without participation in profits.
Payment of Claims.—Interest will be allowed on the amount paid in respect of the sum assured and bonus (if any), for the period from the date of the occurrence of the event described in the Schedule to the date of payment, provided that notice of the event be received within three months from the date of the occurrence. The rate of interest allowed will be determined from time to time by the Society.
Proof of Age.—If the date of birth of the life assured is not proved during the existence of the assurance the Society reserves the right to call for evidence thereof before payment of a claim.

ASSIGNMENTS.—Notice of any assignment must be registered at the Chief Office of the Society. No agent of the Society is authorized to receive or transmit such notices.
